Real Talk on Tough Topics

We're excited to be partnering with Google / YouTube to bring you PROJECT ROCKIT TV - creating conversations around the kind of stuff we don't often get to talk about at school.

PROJECT ROCKIT presenters are highly experienced facilitators, digital natives and have a genuine understanding of young people because, well, they are young people! Each episode comes complete with discussion questions to help frame classroom conversation or even chats between mates. Subscribe to our YouTube channel for new releases.

1. WATCH

2. DISCUSS   You'll need to actually open the videos in YouTube to access discussion questions, which are presented in the description section below each video. Click 'show more' and a longer description will unfold, containing three discussion questions in relation to the video you've just watched. It looks just like this:

3. SUBSCRIBE   We're releasing a total of 12 episodes throughout 2017, with Season 2 premiering in 2018. If you're subscribed to the PROJECT ROCKIT YouTube channel you'll be the first to hear about new eps!

We recommend breaking out into small groups so that everyone can be heard. Be sure to stress that there are no right or wrong answers - the questions have been specifically designed with that in mind. It may also be helpful to point out that this isn't the space to unpack personal experiences with these issues, but that teachers can point students in the direction of follow up support should they need it.

Episode 4 levels up into the world of online gaming, examining the idea of 'rage.' Specifically, how do we manage our frustration while playing, both in ourselves and when we're on the receiving end?

Episode 5

In Episode 5 of PROJECT ROCKIT TV, we explore the pressures of social media - perfection, likes and online popularity.

Episode 6

In Episode 6 we get nude. Well sort of. The reality is, it's not cool to pressure somebody to send private photos if they don't want to, and in some situations it's actually illegal. But what can you do if it's happens to you?

Episode 7

"How are you?" Good... We challenge the interaction so many of us have. The reality is, sometimes it's hard to open up when things aren't 'good,' but sometimes we've got to let people support us in order for things to get better.

Episode 8

The second in our two-part take on NUDES. This time Caitlin and Archie look at how to support someone whose private photo gets leaked.

Episode 9

Episode 9 is the second in our two-part take on SUPPORT. Last time we looked at opening up when you need support, this time Ash and Ro explore how to support those who need us.

Episode 10
Gender

We take a look at gender and related stereotypes.
For some of us, gender roles are really comfortable,
But for others they can really hold us back from being Ourselves. Either way, it's a great idea to talk about
Gender stereotypes - this episode and discussion
Should get you started.

Episode 11
